

PSYC126L : Human Growth and Development

This course surveys physiological, mental and emotional development over the human life span. Using the central concepts of epigenetic stages and interaction with the environment, the course identifies the main trends of human development and explores the needs and typical responses of persons at each stage.

Credits 3

Lab Hours 0

Class Hours 3