

AUTO136L : GM Engine and Engine Related Electrical

This course provides the student with knowledge and skills necessary to diagnose, service, and repair the advanced engines used in GM vehicles today. The activities include engine disassembly, evaluation, repair, and reassembly of a variety of the latest world-class engines manufactured by General Motors and their industry partners. The student will also study GM ignition systems, starting and charging systems.

Credits 5

Lab Hours 9

Class Hours 2

Prerequisites

AUTO121L and AUTO129L