CIS245L : Information Storage and Management

This course teaches students how to manage and secure information. This includes instruction and hands-on exercises in the installation, configuration, and management of a variety of technologies like RAID, SAN and NAS used for storing, accessing, securing, sharing and optimizing information.

Credits 3
Lab Hours 2
Class Hours 2
Prerequisite Courses
CIS136L: Fundamentals of Information Technology